Seth,

We had held off providing deposition availability and producing Rule 34 documents for the proposed new economic loss class representatives in light of your side reaching out on Dec. 14 to potentially negotiate a larger modification to the schedule that would encompass this.

It's clear from what we heard on tonight's call that there is still some daylight between the respective scheduling positions. In light of that reality, we are providing deposition availability within the current deadlines for the proposed new reps in late February through March 26. Please see the redlines in the attached word document.

We will be providing Rule 34 responsive documents after the holiday as those take some administrative leg work to get bates stamped and uploaded to centrality. We are happy to provide informally those documents as soon as tomorrow or Weds, if you wish. Let us know. PFSs will follow.

In the event the parties agree to an omnibus scheduling amendment that includes these depositions at a later time, and the Court grants the parties' joint request to amend the schedule, we will of course provide new deposition dates that comports with the parties' agreement.

Thanks,

John R. Davis
